Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method for manufacturing a resist mask used for fabricating, e.g., a semiconductor device or a liquid crystal display device. Particularly, the present invention relates to a method for forming a pattern on a substrate by using a predetermined resist mask. The predetermined resist mask is used for forming, e.g., a gate pattern of a metal-oxide semiconductor field-effect transistor (MOSFET). 2. Description of the Related Art In the conventional method, a resist mask used for fabricating a gate electrode of a MOSFET is formed in the following process. First, a buffer layer is formed on a silicon substrate. Then, photoresist is applied to the buffer layer to form a photoresist layer. Then, the photoresist layer is exposed to light so as to form a predetermined pattern on the photoresist layer. Then, the photoresist layer is subjected to pattern development so as to form a gate pattern with the predetermined pattern formed thereon. Then, the buffer layer under the gate pattern is dry-etched by using the gate pattern as an etching mask. By etching a part of the silicon substrate by using the gate pattern as an etching mask, the gate electrode is formed. In the above-described conventional method, the structure of the photoresist layer is one with the photoresist layer formed so as to have a predetermined pattern. FIGS. 2A-2E are cross-sectional views of the steps in a conventional method for forming a photoresist pattern on a photoresist layer. In FIG. 2A, a buffer layer 12 is formed on a silicon substrate 11. Then, a photoresist layer 13 is formed on the buffer layer 12. As shown in FIG. 2B, the photoresist layer 13 is subjected to exposure to light so as to form a predetermined pattern (not shown) on the photoresist layer 13. Then, the photoresist layer 13 is subjected to pattern development so as to form a gate pattern 13a. A protective layer
