The only exception is when a secondary (landfill) collector is also installed, or when the land use is only for this purpose. Secondary collectors are normally only used when small sanitary landfills are made, with capacities of 100 cubic meters or less, mainly for household and small commercial waste. As small sanitary landfills are made, the inert content is usually increased, as this will ensure a more favorable incineration process. The inert content is composed of non-degradable solid matter, such as plastics, rubber, metal, paper, glass, and concrete. Solid waste management refers to the collection, disposal, treatment, or recycling of municipal solid waste. Management practices include policies, techniques, and processes for reducing, eliminating, or recovering the solid waste generated. Management practices include policies, 54b84cb42d
