It is quite odd to see. It certainly looked cool in my head, and I had a lot of fun playing with it. But when it was time to draw it, it was way too big to fit my idea of how Toon Shorts should work and it didn't really do the game justice. (Which I suppose could be a good thing.) Please don't say I'm not artistic, because that's just silly. I'm actually quite capable of illustrating things if I really put my mind to it, I'm just bad at it. It's pretty standard practice for me to work up a sketch before doing any drawing. That way I can see what a piece of art is going to look like before it gets started. Sometimes I want to draw something completely different from what I first envisioned, but I still want to know how it will look, so I sketch it out first. If you want to know more about my art, feel free to browse around my deviantART page, or you can click the link in the sig.  PLEASE NOTE: Some art tags are not mine; some are all-time faves of mine that are over the years looked at a lot, and I have figured out how to to improve at art so I could draw them better over the years. This includes "Toon Shorts", I'd definitely improve as time went on. So, they're not mine, but if you do find one that you want to give me credit for, then feel free. I'd appreciate it. :) Q: How to remove keys from a simple array in Ruby? How do I remove keys from a simple array in Ruby? array = [{"1", "2"}, {"3", "4"}, {"5", "6"}] I want to take each element of the list, and remove the first element from the key The end result should look like this: {"1", "2"} {"3", "4"} {"5", "6"} I have tried: array.each {|k,v| k.split(", ",1).each {|v| v.delete(1)} } But this removes both elements from the array, instead of just the first element. A: You're looping over the first element of the arrays, which is why you need to delete the first element when splitting.
