Q: Find all integer solutions of $(x+y)^4 = 2^x \cdot 3^y$ Find all integer solutions of the equation $x^4+4xy^3+y^4+4x+4y = 2^x \cdot 3^y$ It seems to me that this equation has no solution, but I've tried to find a counterexample. Here's the best I could do... The given equation can be factorized as $(x-y)^2 \cdot (x+y-1)^2$ Then I've checked that each factor of $(x+y-1)$ is greater than 1, and tried to find a counterexample of the form $(x-y)^2 = (x+y-1)^n$ with x, y being large and n being small. But I didn't manage to find a suitable counterexample. Do you know of a way to prove that there is no solution? A: Dividing by $2^x \cdot 3^y$ and writing this as $2^x \cdot 3^y (1+z) = 1$, where $z = 2y+1$ yields the equation $2^x = 3^z$ which has no integer solutions.) can be a tricky thing to accomplish in the modern professional context, but that's what it takes in order to excel in the modern world. So, now, it's your turn. Hot-Seat Mentoring is a program offered by the National Association of Law Placement that gives the graduates of J.D. programs the chance to practice law while getting paid to do so, for free. All you have to do is choose a grad school, log onto the NALP website to find a grad, get a referral from a current grad or judge, and get introduced to an attorney in your state who'd be willing to mentor you. Sounds easy, right? It's getting down to crunch time, class is just days away and you're starting to panic. If you're in a large class you may wonder whether you will be assigned a lawyer who will have time to mentor you, let alone attend to any individual needs you may have. Jonathan Davis is a New York-based attorney and

INTRODUCTION ===== Increasing usage of percutaneous nephrolithotomy (PNL) in the setting of ureteropelvic junction (UPJ) obstruction and renal stones ≤ 2 cm is encouraged by success rates comparable to those for open surgery. [b1-cln_65p1365],[b2-cln_65p1365] As a major complication of PNL, nephrostomy tube placement (NTP) occurs with an incidence of 3--9%, and may be associated with hospital morbidity and a longer hospital stay. [b3-cln_65p1365],[b4-cln_65p1365] In an effort to prevent NTP in PNL, we began assessing pre-existing percutaneous tracts for a guide to identify the UPJ during PNL. We also performed a retrospective review of the medical records to identify factors which may predispose to UPJ placement during PNL. MATERIALS AND METHODS ===== We reviewed 21 records of patients who were treated by PNL for symptomatic renal calculi at our institution from January of 2004 to January of 2005. All patients had pre-existing percutaneous nephrostomy tracts, including one patient with a combination of two tracts. The mean age was 57 years (range 41--70); male: female ratio was 3:1. Under fluoroscopic guidance, the original tracts were located by moving the tip of the needle tract just outside the skin. A modified Berman tube was then threaded through the original tract, and positioned in the calyx of interest. The location of the original tract was used to confirm UPJ obstruction. Mean operative time was 168 minutes (range 120--305). The mean stone size was 9.2 mm (range 5--15). Complications including difficulty of cannulation, bleeding, hematuria and death were noted. Possible predictive factors for the presence of the UPJ during PNL were examined and included age, stone size, location, laterality and number of nephrostomy tubes placed. Statistical analysis was performed using a chi-squared (χ^2) test. A p-value \
