Imaging," I'll show you how to improve your image sharpness, using the optimal settings for the two main modalities on the market today: computed tomography and magnetic resonance imaging. In my past three vlogs, I've shown you how to set up and use the DICOM Viewer, which displays diagnostic images from medical imaging software. If you haven't already done so, watch these Vlogs first: Since then,

I've come out with the

Behind Asterisks XP

The application can recover passwords saved to your Internet Explorer webpages and MS Windows applications. It can also decrypt passwords that are hidden under asterisks in your Internet Explorer and MS Windows Mail accounts. Use the secret tool behind the asterisks if the best one you can think of is P@ssw0rd, or if you are in need of a password for web or email. It can be downloaded from here: It can unblock all your AOL Instant Messenger messages. With this very reliable tool, you can not only hide all the messages you are ashamed of, but also recover them. It will allow you to recover forgotten passwords and access the online accounts of your choice. Features:

- Easy to install and use.
- Encrypts your login info.
- Stops others from accessing your account. • Stops others from using your account. • Encrypts

your web chat messages • Recover

A virtual keyboard that can be used by a single person on a keyboard only - or by multiple people on a keyboard & mouse. Why should I use it? Anyone who has ever had their cubicle mate steal their work because they can see what they are typing will agree that they could benefit from this solution. How does it work? 1. Learn a secret code (initials, or other part of the alphabet, or just whatever you want to use) - this gives you access to a virtual keyboard. 2. As you type, press the spacebar. This makes the characters under the cursor invisible. This means, that when you type something and press the spacebar, you hide the characters you type. 3. When you are finished typing, press the escape key to "erase" your characters. This means that the characters will be visible again. This is the last step of hiding the characters and the keys are reset so as not to be "encrypted" again (see rule 3 again). 5.

When you are ready,
just tell your friend where to find the password and he can decrypt the password and use it as he will like. Since the password will be the same as on your phone, he can also message the CEO and get a raise, or better still, you get your
