HyperMotion Technology was first featured in FIFA 17, and was further expanded for FIFA 18, FIFA 19 and FIFA 20. "FIFA 22 continues the evolution and improvement of HyperMotion Technology, adding new attacking 'picks', new defensive abilities and some brand new goalscoring tricks," reads a blog post on EA Sports website. The aim of the new movement based tricks in FIFA 22 is to "simplify the act of creating shots and last-ditch, surprising saves." In FIFA 22, players will now be able to perform pinpoint, dynamic shots from the run, or take a quick tap shot on goal. It is also possible to perform 'pops', which are more technical manoeuvres, requiring sharper footwork and less distance. Precision shots, passing and dynamic dribbles have also been given even more finesse in FIFA 22. An additional new feature that will add a unique experience to FIFA 22 is the ability to control players that haven't scored a goal using the goalie AI assistant. Since goalkeepers play as a team, in many cases a goalkeeper will choose to play a long cross in, rather than use a defensive clearance. By playing the goalkeeper close and commanding the ball to one of the stars on the opposing team, it is possible to set up a counter-attack. Goalkeepers could also be smart enough to frustrate an opponent by changing your cross to a pass back to one of their own attackers. The fantasy news continues. There's a new Loan Playmaker which allows players to sign up to 17 players, who are loaned to other players. Loan players can earn experience and use skill and attributes of the loaned players. The key ingredients for the loan players is to make them good enough to earn higher levels. Also returning from FIFA 17, is the Sanction, which is the penalty shoot out system. Now players can take advantage of this penalty shoot out by passing between players and working out an effective team strategy. "When taking on the new system of rules introduced in FIFA 21, we decided to make a wholesale, in-game change to enhance both the tactical and competitive experience," commented Seb Beckmann, Global Creative Director, FIFA, EA SPORTS. "HyperMotion has been the foundation of our pursuit of innovation in the area of player movement since FIFA 15, and continues to serve as a key driver of our creativity in this respect

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- Play with Authenticity -Master the touch of the ball and let the ball do the work in the New Interactive Physics System, where the ball and chips react exactly as they do in the real world. Experience the new volumetric Head Impact System where every collision between your body and the ball results in a realistic impact, whether it's a collision with a post or another player.
- Be A Pro - From playmaking and dribbling to marking and shooting, make every decision count in Sky Fortnite. Be The Pro. How you do it is up to you - try to earn a contract with the Pro Clubs, master the challenges in FIFA Moments, and get help from your friends and your clubs using FUT Drafts. Play like you've never played before.
- Touch It. Be It - Call shots, take shots, send crosses, and make runs for your teammates in the new advanced player AI that learns from your play style.
- New Gameplay Features - Engage in more attacks that allow you to shoot quickly, start moves that create shots or open up defences, run into the gap and attempt center passes, and slow down time or change direction to avoid shots.
- New Ball Physics - In addition to the physics model being faster, more fluid and more reactive, the new ball physics in FIFA 22 are the first step in the most advanced ball model in the series.
