My Online Reminiscing Fun Friday, August 14, 2006 “You’re a very lucky girl.” The moment I heard that, I knew I didn’t deserve this blessing and I would repay that kind doctor for acting as though he was completely sincere. The doctor’s prayerfully said the words several times to me. He went on and on about my “lucky” day; and with divine grace, I deserved it. This is how I began my labor; how I had reached the end of my hair. The only thing that ran through my thoughts was how much that doctor cursed me. I started to feel sick and told him “if I push it begins to hurt”. He made me comfortable and encouraged me. I paused for a moment to remind him “ I am a college student in second semester, so I need to put up with this”. He didn’t want to let me go away so soon, but it wasn’t possible. I was moving slowly. I told him “I’m sure delivering my baby alone is a headache already”. What could I do - all alone? I started to get my first urge when it took more than five minutes to reach my pelvis...and again I was told if this pain continues, I should come to the hospital. I was scared. There was no one to help me deliver my baby. Where was my wonderful guardian angel? A few minutes later the doctor returned with his shining white medical bag. Again I felt that doctor mentioned the fact that I am lucky. However, he suggested that you can place gel in my vagina or between two of my fingers. Then, he expressed that I can go to the hospital or that I can continue to stay home. I couldn’t help it. I told him “Doctor, I never felt better in my life and how can I deliver my baby alone with you? When my baby comes out, I don’t have a single babysitter”. My fear for that baby can’t be hid anymore. He tried to assure me that everything would be alright. Back to the day of my birth, the amnesia is coming back fast like the speed of a bullet. I remember everything accurately. That day had been a standard meeting for me - school, friend, house, electricity, society... In the middle of the night

Arcade mode: Up to 4 people in a team, trying to conquer a single life time high score. Race mode: Up to 10 human opponents, racing against the clock or taking turns with the laser guide to earn the highest scores. There are 4 different arenas that offer different rules. The Single-player mode contains 3 different levels. Arena is the most classic mode. You will play against the AI in a arena with up to 4 players, Some segments offer a multigol zone in the middle. Players can choose between direct drive and turbo function for a lot of extra speed. In Battle mode you can play against the AI or your friends. Split-screen allows up to 2 players and supports up to 5 AI players. Top Down mode is the least experienced mode. It's the only game mode where you can not use the laser guide, which is a shame for it's skill to take the first place. Some annoying aspects of the game are: Removing a disc twice during the same turn gives the AI control of the disc again. The AI has a huge advantage in battles against five players. The laser guide is sort of hard to use correctly. But the game is awesome!!! Give this thing a try and you will not be disappointed! REVIEW: Here is a game that has very solid gameplay, great art and great graphics. You can configure every detail, just what you want. This is the finest quality game around since it is awesome to play. Something I find very interesting is the multi-leveled arena's, where you play in a cave or in a mountain. There are different kinds of arenas to have many different games. The game has many different aspect's. The game is fun to play and will make you laugh a lot. It is one of the most addictive games I have ever played. I really recommend playing it!
