He turned his face until his mouth was turned to hers. He kissed her tenderly, his lips caressing and nipping at hers. He stroked her back, he moved to her neck and ears, he kissed her again. When his nose was in her neck, her body began to quiver, sending waves of pleasure through her body. He must not have noticed, else he would have stopped. He pressed his body into hers, hard and long. She felt the pressurization of his manhood. Her lips moved to his and she kissed him. She grabbed his body and pulled him into a heated embrace. Her lips left his and ventured down his neck. She paused and looked up at him, her eyes questioning. He looked at her, a loving, innocent, vulnerable look. She went to his neck, brushing her fingers across the soft skin. She ran her hands over his shoulders and around his neck. I have 3 lists. in list1: elements = [{"a":1}, {"a":2}, {"a":3}, {"a":4}] in list2: index = [1,0,0,0] I want to change the element in the first list by its index in list2. So I want to do something like: element = list1[index[i]] But I have this error: 'list' object has no attribute '_getitem__' A: Try: list1[list1.index(element)] = element This works because the index works on lists, not the dicts (so element = list1[1] will return the list ['a': 1}, {'a': 2}] instead of {'a': 1}), and since dicts are lists, list1.index(element) returns a list with the index of element in the list as its first element. List.index(x) Return the index of an item, if it is present, else raise a ValueError. If the argument is not present in the list, it returns -1. ~ a New York lifestyle blog Street Art Harlem - Saturday, May 28th - If you are looking for the fun, colorful New York City style, this is it.
