Tuesday, September 14, 2007 XCJ Smorgasbord: Slim's Sermon "The road to the Promised Land lies through Jerusalem" Jonah, in chapter 4, wakes up in the belly of the whale. God, in his anger, drives the sea creatures away, and Jonah is left stranded on the water's shore. For three days, Jonah prays and fasting. This narrative of Jonah on the beach parallels the prophet's message, where God asks Jonah to be prepared for the sin of his city, the wicked Nineveh. The Holy Church, though, have a different perception of the number of days that Jonah was in the whale. The Church interprets this narrative as simply being the prophet's way of telling God that Jonah, as a fasting prophet, will be a merciful person to the citizens of Nineveh, especially since Jonah is himself being forgiven for his previous misdeeds. I'm of the opinion that both of these interpretations are correct, but only if you look at this story as a whole. What does it tell us about God? The Nineveh story ends with Jonah promising God to go back and preach to the people, as God is angry that they refused to repent to him. Because of his promise, God is prepared to forgive the Ninevites. God has mercy on Jonah because of Jonah's actions. I would also say that this same analogy can be applied to Slim's Sermon in Chronicles of Slim. This gospel isn't to be preached like the Bible or the Church's books, but is more like a sermon, or lesson, or whatever you may want to call it. At the end of Slim's Sermon, Slim walks away from the sermon podium saying, "Now I'll show you." I believe this to mean that the lesson Slim teaches us is just beginning, and we have to continue our quest. We too must learn to preach to people. The road to the Promised Land lies through Jerusalem. God is a forgiving Father who accepts his children, so as we are in our pews, let us learn how to be a father to those around us. We must realize that life is a journey, not a race. There will be ups and downs, but with God's strength, we can beat life's obstacles. I hope that this lesson will sink into your hearts, and as a preacher, we'll continue to teach the same principles Slim teaches us. Wednesday, September 8, 2007 CHAINSA

What's new in Kochu's Dream:

The Rainforest Alarm clock, Sleep Clock, World Clock, etc. may include a pendulum which moves back and forth in relationship to time. This pendulum is operated by a motor, so when you talk about the Moon and the sun, it is thought to interact with a pendulum. Look at the creation of a pendulum, and the characteristics of the operation of a pendulum. Also, change of heading according to the movement of the pendulum. Special collaboration with the artists associated with the pendulum; the basic box of Wood and Japanese lacquer. The operating mechanism parts of the pendulum were carefully researched. 4. Animation parts were created with the use of a program designed by myself. Special effects for this part are the effect of pendulum movement when the program becomes aware of movement. Compulsory game. Each piece is hard to get along with is "A Brief History of the Pendulum" The system is installed in the main room of the gameworld. A solid base parts are attached to the solid base. When the user enters the move, then the weights are freely moved and the pendulum pendulum, which makes the platform is operated. And the game starts By chance, you have the chance to get a 'Bonus Time" by always ascending the platform. If you move the shift up on a slide is counted as a one time. As it moves, it becomes more interesting Charge travels to the top of the game just like a car when it gets up, and the user can enjoy the game Therefore, it is possible to grow, and it is a child friendly Pendant Cabinet It is a cabinet made of pentalpha. People mostly describe this game as like an RPG with a very solid time management system, more or less. And that sounds absolutely awesome. ABOUT US: Tales From The Darkness are a team of 10 people driven by passion and a desire for greatness. We are all terribly enthusiastic about Lovecraftian horror and the storied Greek Epic called The Odyssey, which arguably makes us some sort of Cyclopes! We all have way more experience in indie games, but we've combined our experience to build a game that is probably unlike any other game we've made. Or ever made. CONTACT US: We have a Facebook, Twitter, and e-mail address, but only if you want to hear about us! ;) The Hype: Just look at the hype. How could any game not be amazing with that kind of hype? A: My Thoughts It's a romp through the Cthulhu Mythos. There's even a handy "novel way to play" guide that makes it somewhat approachable to outsiders. If you're not familiar with the Lovecraft Mythos and you just want to get in and play, you can think of it as a short computer game with text based turn based combat. All the info you need is available online in great readability in the wiki for the game as well as other info on the developer. Try it, it's great fun. Q: SSAS Cube Design - what are the best practices for using the 'Linked Table' to find numeric values? I'm trying to replicate an OLAP model from an OLTP schema in a new SSAS project. The solution works, so long as the table is using an identity as the PK. I wanted to use the Linked Table feature to incorporate numeric lookup values. This is part of an ongoing project on getting better at Data Modeling, so I want to make sure I'm solving the problem the best way possible. Problem I'm currently using a view as a data source, and my process is as follows: I'm using the Linked Table of Data Source to my OLAP Cube. I have the Primary key of this view be an Identity. There is no business key/PK value from the source OLTP database, so I want this table to be purely numeric. The issue I am running into is that SSAS wants the Linked Table to have a view definition.
