The effect of the variations of gonadal steroids on the behaviour of male rats was studied in the open field with the use of a double blind test. The experiments were conducted at the age of 6-7 and 15-16 weeks. High doses of progesterone and 17-keto-progesterone during the period of puberty caused the development of a more masculine behavioural style. The same doses of progesterone during the period of sexual maturity led to an exacerbation of the emotional-affective disorder. The sex-steroids possessed a stimulating effect on the development of male sexual behaviour. Progesterone was accompanied by a decrease in locomotion and an increase in the intensity of the defensive reactions of male rats. The maximum effect of the sex-steroids was observed after a single administration. After the termination of hormonal treatment a

Overview: In this Technical Preview, we are working on making Path of Exile's Pathfinding system more reliable. It is designed to track your character's position (speed, direction and distance from an origin point) and also your enemies' positions. This is important for Path of Exile's various instant-cast and delay-cast spells, for finding bosses, for travelling through the world (including for the duration of your Death Lacerate) and for being able to chase monsters (including in the corner case of being able to immediately murder all monsters you can see without
