- THE POINT Helvetica is an adventure game with a puzzle-solving and story-driven gameplay. The game's name is a tribute to the typeface of My-Zombie-Girl - an 8-bit retro typeface I created in 2012. - STORY Leo di Lucente is a man from a small village in Italy, one day travelling through the Alps. He saw a woman, waving to him from a mountain peak, and went up to her. She let him in and he learned that she is called Isabella and that she was from Moravia. He decided to go back home to tell everyone of her, to let her know that there are still some people like her. Leo is not the only one seeing the strange phenomenon of a girl at the peak. A group of researchers from the University of Rome La Sapienza and a number of travelers have also been there. However, the only survivor of that day is the girl, who, despite her young age and the trauma she went through, is now pregnant. - STYLING & ARTWORK With a combination of 2D and 3D graphics and animated cutscenes, we aim to provide a very cinematic and artistic experience. The game is made as a homage to 80s' and 90s' adventure games, with an 8-bit pixel-art style, graphic ambiance and old-school interface. - TASKS The player has to complete 3 tasks in order to find out what really happened and how to proceed. Some tasks will require different combinations of actions or choices, or items found throughout the game. - ENJOYMENT We hope that the game will offer a nice and smooth experience, as it aims to be one of the most immersive and cinematic adventures, putting a lot of effort in the enjoyment of the game experience and low frustration. - BUILD The game is free to play, but will be supported in the future by optional in-game DLC, in order to add new features, characters, locations, and tasks. This game is already being released, and has already been released on Nintendo eShop in both version for the 3DS. A GOTY edition, port to Android and Windows for PC and Mac is in progress. RPG Maker MZ is, as the name suggests, a free RPG Maker game engine. Players can create games from the ground up using a simple point-and-click interface. RPG Maker MZ allows the export of games in the.EXE format, but only.XMZ and.XLO files are supported by the engine. RPG Maker MZ is free to use and requires no runtime license. This game engine is still new, and there are many outstanding features not yet available. Join us to make this game engine grow! 3D RPG Maker: 3D RPG Maker is a new RPG Maker game engine dedicated to 3D games, creating unlimited possibilities for your next RPG. The 3D engine is entirely free, and requires no runtime license. 3D RPG Maker focuses on intuitive game making, with little to no scripting. The project started as an exploration of how the 3D environment can add more value to your game (such as height-of-art graphics, or revealing the hidden elements in a game object). 3D RPG Maker started as a proof of concept, but with your help and feedback, it will evolve into a powerful game making environment for everyone. Legendary Hero 2: Legendary Hero 2 is a turn-based role-playing game, made with RPG Maker MZ. The world is bursting with action, and the hero will live to tell the tale. Legendary Hero 2 has been fully re-scripted since the first game was released on June 4th, 2009. The game is now being re-made in the engine and game development environment RPG Maker MZ. 7 Epic Hero 2 Updates and 2 New Epic Hero Series Updates: With support for the new game engine, RPG Maker MZ, the Epic Hero 2 updates currently available: New Epic Hero 2 Updates: New Characters: As the epics age, the Lord and Hero shall eventually be gods in their own right. From now on, anyone can make their characters and enter the epic world! New Stats: The stats panel was completely redesigned. New Home Menu: If you still have special icons on your menu, they have been moved and coded into the home screen. New Hero Profiles: The character create panel now has the profile slots built-in. d41b202975

What's new:

-ONE lacks a "G" key) and found the macro to be incredibly slow. So I went back to using the keyboard and learned to type at more than a braindead pace. So far so good. My ADS-1278 AV receiver had a few problems, mostly being a full complement of receivers, which are rendered useless by this boffin-fangled den/living room setup. First, my Denon DVD-TV receiver wouldn't play DVD-R Discs even though that player was in audio mode (only) and then the Receiver wouldn't play any CDs even though I had connected my CD player like a normal person (i.e., to the receiver, not directly). All it would do was bawl out "Dummy Output" when I tried to load any disc. So I swapped it out for my Panasonic CR-20, and the new receiver booted into the receiver option for CDs, so the new player seemed to be behaving properly. Maybe, I was being a whiney ning-nong. :-) I had just spent hundreds of bucks trying to set up a boffin-fangled den to accommodate kids, just to find that not only was everything foreign to me (the Denon and the receiver were pretty alien to me as it was), it was taking a while for things to get set-up right. And this was just some Brix in my head. As it happens, I'm reinstalling my Denon DVD-T receiver, so the kids can finally see what a real boffin setup looks like. Monday, March 09, 2009 I'm the "ONLY" one of the adults who uses them. I make no apologies for it. It keeps me on my toes. A little bit of Tom Sawyer is handy. Usually works until the kids get onto a game and find me too old to play with them, then they spend all their time hanging around my neighbor's pool and field for their athletic endeavors. "Why don't you come down to our pool?" one or two of them grumble. "I'm old now". I told them I still played with a few old boys and girls from the neighborhood. True. Actually, a "hoopdown" was an unsmoking (don't ask me why, either) game for boy's basketball. And I like to toss a softball around on the front lawn with my old Pap again. In the
