More than a million inhabitants in São Paulo are immigrants from other regions in Brazil and other countries. In 2013, São Paulo was ranked as the world's 22nd most populated city by the United Nations. São Paulo, according to data from the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics, has a total area of 939 km², which makes it the 12th most densely populated city of South America. The metropolitan region of São Paulo has a population of more than 42 million inhabitants, making it the most populous metropolitan area of the continent. Its metropolitan region includes other municipalities, that together have more than 75 million inhabitants, and is home to more than half the nation's population. It is also the nation's economic and commercial center, with more than 56% of the national GDP, an annual turnover of more than $520 billion, and the third-largest exchange rate of currencies in the world. São Paulo is the 15th largest consumer economy of the world and the biggest contributor to the Brazilian economy. History In 1621, after the Portuguese king John III of Portugal started a campaign to conquer lands to the north, led by the Portuguese explorer Pedro Álvares Cabral, São Paulo became a free port and was settled by the Portuguese, Dutch and British. São Paulo became a base of
