Unfortunately, the Exotics were created with unnecessary, illegal and horribly destructive psychic powers. The humans trusted the Exotics with these powers; the Exotics agreed to help; the Exotics used these powers for personal gain, and for over a decade humans have been paying the price for doing so. ## What's new:

Galactic Tower Defense is an upcoming real-time strategy game developed by American indie developer Hello Games and published by Microsoft Game Studios, which was announced on April 21, 2012 at the 2012 Spike Video Game Awards. The player takes the role of a galactic director, in charge of building and monitoring an interstellar military defence system for their star cluster. The game's title includes the term tower, being a reference to the automated space battle defense towers the player can control. Galactic Tower Defense gameplay differs from other Tower Defense games in that defense towers can be built anywhere, enemies are much more aggressive and it is the player who deploys these towers, rather than the player being a passive observer. Galactic Tower Defense has a single-player campaign and competitive multiplayer modes along with a level editor. Galactic Tower Defense is currently in pre-production. Microsoft has stated that the game was in the final stages of development when the company disbanded the Naughty Dog-led Mirror's Edge team on which the game was to be developed. Gameplay Overview In Galactic Tower Defense the player (collectively referred to as the Galactic Director) guides a military force across the open galaxy to protect their asteroid settlements from hostile enemies (collectively referred to as the Galactids). Players are in charge of building and managing defensive towers across their star systems. These towers involve an upgrade function that players can grant to their defences such as extra points bonuses for increasing the destruction level of an enemy, to induce the enemies to target the towers. In addition to expanding the player's defences the Galactic Director has the ability to issue orders to their officers, such as directing them to target key systems of enemy fleets or to maximise the attack power of an enemy's ship on the planet. Unlike other Tower Defense games, which are limited to developing the planetary defence provided by the graphic tiles that form the playable field, Galactic Tower Defence is a strategy RPG in which defense tiles are located anywhere across the galaxy and have a customisable defence capable of the destruction of incoming Galactids. Prior to the game's release, the player will build a base on which the towers are built, a process which involves first selecting the galaxy and next choosing the types and locations of the towers. Construction can be performed in both real-time or at intervals that can be customised by the player. Players may also choose to build secure outposts, which can be later upgraded into Advanced forts in a similar fashion to the towers. After the global network
