"We are developing this technology with the mission to capture the nature and emotion of the beautiful game," said Ambra Mariotto, FIFA and PES executive producer. "AI and motion capture technology are playing an increasingly important role in sports. With FIFA 22, we are providing fans with more realistic representation of the game." Also new for FIFA 22 are the DNA "DNA modes", the all-new Squad Battles feature, and a new way to score goals – Dribbling. Here's the full feature list: FIFA 22 Key Features FIFA 22 will introduce two key new features to play the beautiful game: The Development Phase – Your player will have three distinct phases in the development process: The pre-purchase period – During this period, you can collect your rewards and buy your items before the game launches. This is your chance to acquire the best items at discounted prices. The development phase starts after the pre-purchase period ends. The game will be updated after the development phase on a regular basis. This feature has been available in PES and FIFA titles from a previous generation of consoles. FIFA 22 allows you to customize your squad, customize your style of play and get to grips with all new training modes. During the development phase, you can do all of this and get rewards for achievements in My Career mode as well as the ability to customize your main character and create a Club XI. All of this can be done in the shadow of the development phase, so that you're not able to participate in the actual gameplay. However, you'll still be able to enjoy all the game modes, FIFA Ultimate Team, and tournaments you already know and love. FIFA 22 will support various languages, including French, German, Italian, Brazilian Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, English and many more. Squad Battles – Each year, you can battle against your friends to be crowned the best team on FIFA and PES. This is the new and improved version of the NFL Blitz mode from FIFA 06, and is now available to gamers around the world in the Development Phase. In our Squad Battles mode, you will compete in one-on-one matches, but instead of playing against a CPU opponent, you will face-off against an opponent you've developed with your friends. This will provide you with the unique experience of playing against an opponent you
