“This technology helps make the action more immersive and lifelike and accelerates the development of the game,” said David Rutter, General Manager of FIFA and EA SPORTS. “Now players can play a game that feels just like real life and experience all the highs and lows of playing football at a much higher level.” This year’s FIFA game introduces the ability to see more options in moves such as rolling, dummying, and sliding, faster movement, more authentic ball physics, and improvements to goalkeepers and officials. The game also adds a brand-new offline career mode, and introduces the ability to link the offline career with the online experience by working toward goals within the offline mode. The offline mode also allows players to join any club at any time of the year, and have the player’s career progress regardless of the season. FIFA 22 is available now on Xbox One and PlayStation 4, with PC coming early 2019. The first set of next-gen FIFA Ultimate Team cards will also be available at launch, and is now available for pre-order on Xbox.com, PlayStation.com and fubo.com. Fans will have early access to FIFA 20 content via the FIFA 20 DLC Pass, featuring a variety of new content for FIFA Ultimate Team. All current FIFA 20 owners will receive an invitation to play FIFA 20 via disc, and get 10% off FIFA Ultimate Team items. About the game - FIFA 22 introduces HyperMotion™ Technology, which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits, to power the fast-paced, authentic action of FIFA gameplay. Designed by the world’s leading sports gaming team at EA SPORTS, the game features an open, innovative gameplay style and technology that gives players full freedom of movement, real-world player motion, and precise ball physics. HyperMotion™ Technology is also the first FIFA title to make player movements and on-ball actions more visible. Today’s players have unprecedented depth of insight into the game thanks to player’s direct input. These insights and the game development team’s efforts in the coming months and years will only lead to gameplay and a sense of true-to-life movement that matches or even surpasses real-life, and the realistic action of the new game is a testament to this. With new driving game mechanics, more intelligent

The world's favourite football series returns with FIFA 22. EA SPORTS FIFA is the world's No.1 football game. Featuring a collection of authentic leagues, styles, teams, stadiums and players, FIFA lets you follow your favourite team through the season. FIFA leads the way for players of all abilities thanks to its intuitive controls, revolutionary new gameplay mechanics and EA SPORTS Authentic Player Models. This season, FIFA has never looked better. As the largest single investment in FIFA development to date, FIFA 22 - the biggest change to the series since FIFA 14 - features fundamental gameplay advances and a new season of innovation across every mode. The revolutionary new FIFA Ultimate Team engine now allows players to own real players, drafted directly from Europe's top leagues - all with a new 3D match engine, re-written from the ground up to support players of all abilities. Over 500 players from 17 different leagues including 5 new ones make up the largest ever FIFA Ultimate Team collection ever, all playable in one game. EA SPORTS has released a new way to play, introducing a new pass and shoot system which allows for players of all abilities to utilise all the skills and work-rate of players with faster feet and reflexes while remaining true to the core game principles of movement and positioning. It's the definitive way to play FUT. FIFA's cover the basics, but they've been redefined. Free kicks are no longer awarded for headers as the ball no longer has to be completely at head height to be scored, where defenders are now restricted to where they can run, and players are free to carry the ball without fear of the opposition intercepting. Dribble dribbles have been added to create a greater sense of timing and anticipation, and the defensive offside trap is now one of the most complex rule sets in FIFA. How your team defends has never been more important. New for FIFA Ultimate Team, cards are now earned through match play rather than merely buying them in packs - making it even more important to earn a full selection of cards to complete your squad. With over 70 cards across every deck, this season's FUT has never been bigger. FIFA 22 shows what EA SPORTS really means when it says FIFA. FIFA Ultimate Team The new game engine is the most important change to the series in the last decade. It has allowed for the addition of real
