I have two classes and I need to call a static method from one class to another. I don't know how to call it in the first class. This is an example of my class.

```
Class Main: from File.Processing.Processing import Call class Desktop(): def __init__(self, Target=None): self.Target = Target def StartCommand(self): Call.Command('proc/%s/task/' % self.Target, self.Run) Class File: from File.Processing.Processing import Call class Process(): def __init__(self, Target=None): self.Target = Target def CallMethod(self): Call.Command('proc/%s/task/' % self.Target, self.Run) def Run(): # Also, how to call a private method from the Main class and call it? A: There is no need to call from Desktop to File. It can be done by using module globals. If calling is a common task, you should put it in a module, so you can use it from anywhere. Then, if you keep the definitions in separate classes, just import the module: from File.Processing.Processing import Call class Desktop(): def __init__(self): self.target = 'foo' def StartCommand(self): Call.Command('proc/%s/task/' % self.target, self.Run) class File: def __init__(self, target): self.target = target def CallMethod(self): Call.Command('proc/%
