Text Size - + reset The bill passed the U.S. Senate by a vote of 96-1 on Tuesday. The legislation, first introduced in February, will take effect upon enactment into law. Puerto Ricans can also apply for U.S. citizenship through a special process. President Barack Obama said after Tuesday's vote that the reform was part of a larger plan to strengthen the island's economic and political relationship with the mainland. Republicans said the plan would "more effectively and swiftly provide relief" to the island, which was devastated by Hurricane Maria. Readers' Comments (16) Citizenship is a privilege not a right. The colonies for the most part were given their freedom and independence. With some rebellions in the century to follow, culminating in the Civil War, the more unified empire of the USA was formed. That being the case, we shouldn't give it to the rest of the world. Puerto Rico's political status is as messed up as it has been for years. They can't do anything like a state unless they sign the compact. The US hasn't ratified the compact, so therefore the US can't recognize it. They can't vote in US elections unless the Commonwealth decides to allow them in. That's not going to happen until Puerto Rico can ratify the compact, which it probably won't do anytime soon. For Puerto Rico to be a U.S. Territory it would mean that Puerto Ricans are allowed to vote. It is unlikely that Puerto Rico will allow it to happen anytime soon unless there is some agreement between the United States and the Commonwealth to allow Puerto Ricans to vote. Puerto Rico needs to address the problem of citizenship or use the move as political leverage for getting a better deal from the United States government. In the 1920's Puerto Rico became a US territory, which meant it lost its position as a state, but it kept the
