Keyshot Environments Free Download ~REPACK~

The light in your scene comes from the environment and/or materials of the light source, but the rendering technique also affects the look of your .dsv file. You can change the look and/or light source of your .dsv file simply by using Photoshop's Image Effects feature. You can add light rendering filters and get different results. For example, the Clipping Mask filter will make your photos look like they are taken from another scene or even another part of the universe. In this post, I'll show you how to use multi-scene filters to change the look of your scene.
